SOCIAL BELLES POSE

Tableaux Vivant Given at Belasco Theater.

GREAT PICTURES REPRODUCED

Splendid Entertainment Draws Attendance of Resident Official and Diplomatic Washington—Dainty and Fetching Fancy Dances Interspersed Through the Programme.

Society was out en masse yesterday afternoon to see the most finished and artistic tableaux vivants ever produced here. They were given for the benefit of the Red Cross Day Camp and the Washington Diet Kitchen at the Belasco Theater.

They were posed by Millet, who had for his subjects the pick of the beautiful women of representative society, who were presented to their friends as the figures in celebrated masterpieces of great artists. Coloring and pose were faithfully carried out, and the result was a series of pictures that were received with acclaim by the enthusiastic audience that filled the larger part of the theater.

Poses and Posers.

There was "Charity," by Abbott Thayer, posed by Mrs. Philip Hiechborn.

"The Duchess of Devonshire and Viscountess Duncannon," by Kaufman, with Miss Bacon as the duchess.

"Lady Betty Delme and Children," by Reynolds, was taken by Mme. Pardo, wife of the Peruvian Minister, who was most attractive as Lady Betty.

"Carmenita," by Sargent, showed Miss May, daughter of Mr. Henry May, as a handsome Spanish dancer, brilliant in coloring of red and yellow, combined with black lace.

"Princess Caroline of Wales, and Princess Charlotte," by Sir Thomas Lawrence, was enthusiastically received.

Mrs. Nicholson, of Boston, and her baby daughter making a most effective picture.

The next number, however, may be said to have been the favorite of the first numbers, "Anne Bolyn," by Hans Holbein, with Miss Shepard as the fated Queen, the costume and coloring of the picture, as well as the model, winning instantaneous applause.

Baroness Moncheur, wife of the Belgian Minister, was a very handsome model as "Lady Hamilton," and as "Circe," by Romney.

Mlle. de la Garde, as the central figure in Boucher's "Pastoral," was most attractive.

Beautiful Representation.

"The Question," by Alma Tadema, was posed by Mrs. Herbert Parsons, wife of Representative Parsons, and Mr. Frank Ellis, which was a beautiful reproduction.

A clever scene was F. D. Millet's "Between Two Fires." Mr. Phillips being the gentleman thus awkwardly placed, and the young ladies, Miss Julia Meyer, daughter of the Postmaster General, and Miss Schuchman.

"The Revue," from an old print, called forth amusement and applause from the friends of Messrs. Hugh Legare, Jackson, and Crowninshield, and Capt. Davis.

"The Stafford Children," by Romney was faithfully and beautifully reproduced by the Misses Cecilia May, Margaret Perrin, Kearney, Fremont Smith, and Frances Hor.

Sir Joshua Reynolds' "Graces" was a fascinating picture in color and grace, the young women taking part being Miss Marion Oliver, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of War; Mrs. Newbold, and Mrs. Jack Story.

"America and Her Colonies" was represented by Misses Ida, Mrs. E. G. Bourke Cockran, and daughter of George Ide, as America, and Mlle. Nabuco, daughter of the Brazilian Ambassador; Miss Frederica Morgan, and Miss Alice Meyer, as the colonies.

Dainty and fetching fancy dances were interspersed through the programme by the clever pupils of Miss Hawke, Little Elizabeth Forney, in her Pas Seul, winning especial appreciation.

Notables in Audience.

In the audience were seen: Mrs. J. M. J. Green, Count d'Adhemar, Mrs. Fred. Mitchell, Mrs. Lamarche, Mrs. Arthur Lee, Mrs. Ward Thorne, Mrs. Warder, Senor Costa, of the Argentine Legation; Mrs. Charles Bell, Miss Louise Maxwell, Mrs. J. P. Jackson, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. McClintock, Lieut. Bulmer, U. S. N., and Mrs. Bulmer, Mrs. Albert Douglas, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Hopkins, the Misses Patten, Mr. Huntington Wilson, Miss Slater, Miss Stevens, Miss Stuart Hooker, and the Misses Dean, of Chicago.

Patronesses in charge of the arrangements were: Mrs. W. Murray Crane, Mrs. Beckman Winthrop, Mrs. Kien, Mrs. Eadie, Miss Gwynn, Mrs. Gaudin, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Newberry, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Thorne, and Miss Boardman.

The entertainment will be repeated to-day at 4 o'clock at the Belasco Theater.

Those who will have boxes at to-day's performance are:

Mrs. George van L. Meyer, Mrs. Charles Augustus Williams, Mrs. William Boardman, Mrs. John Reynolds, Mrs. McClintock, and Mme. Joaquina Nabuco, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador.

Miss Gwynn and Miss Boardman were responsible for the entertainment, which was for the benefit of the Diet Kitchen and the Red Cross Day Camp, and coming from the theater much comment was heard of the credit due the ladies for the exceedingly beautiful and interesting entertainment they had given. It will be repeated this afternoon.
